

From: Lori [REDACTED]
Date: Tuesday, November 22, 2005
Subject: Re: hi, I'm JoAnne's niece
To: Cinderholl <[REDACTED]>

Hi,

I'm rushing because I'm heading out to catch a flight.

3 cans 1 lb. 2 oz chunk sweet potatoes (not generic brand)
1 c. brown sugar
1/3 cup bourbon (or more :-)
1 tsp. vanilla
2 c. small marshmallows

cook potatoes until heated. drain. add butter, mash, then add other ingredients (except marshmallows) and mix until smooth. put in casserole dish. cover top with marshmallows. bake uncovered 1/2 hour at 350 or until marshmallows turn tan.

Enjoy.

Lori

----- Original Message -----

From: [REDACTED]
To: [REDACTED]
Sent: Tuesday, November 22, 2005 9:11 AM
Subject: hi, I'm JoAnne's niece

Hi Lori

You don't know me, but I'm Joanne's niece, Holly. Last year, I was living in Florida and asked my aunts to send me recipes for Thanksgiving and Christmas. One of the recipes Joanne sent me was Bourbon Sweet Potatoes, which she told me today she got from you. I made them last year, and my fiance has not shut up about them for the past year... he loved them and thought they were like the best food I've ever made! I promised I'd make them again this year for Thanksgiving, but when I went to get the recipe off my computer, the file was wiped out (we've had several viruses). Joanne is visiting my aunt Laurie in MD right now, so she doesn't have the recipe, but she said if I e-mailed you you might be able to give it to me. If you still have it could you please e-mail it to me? It would certainly mean a lot to me, and to the man I have made believe that I can cook! Thank you so much!

-- Holly